CBS Films Nabs 'Hellfest' for Gale Anne Hurd

By MIKE FLEMING Thursday July 21, 2011 @ 9:18am PDT

EXCLUSIVE: CBS Films has acquired Hellfest, a script by William Penick and Chris Sey about what happens at a Halloween theme park when one of the costumed characters is actually killing the patrons who think it's all part of the show. Gale Anne Hurd, who's currently producing the AMC series The Walking Dead, will produce the picture under her Valhalla Motion Pictures banner. The scribes wrote the script from a concept by Valhalla's Ben Roberts, who'll be executive producer.

Deal comes after Hurd joined forces with Aspen comics on Dead Man's Run, a series that will be written by Greg Pak. In it, Hell is an underground prison for the reanimated deal, and a man enlists a team of the damned to escape and save his innocent sister's soul.

FX & Fox Int'l Channels Team With GK-TV & Valhalla For Pirate Drama 'Port Royal'

By NELLIE ANDREEVA Monday May 23, 2011 @ 1:24pm PDT

EXCLUSIVE: Graham King's GK-tv and Gale Anne Hurd's Valhalla Entertainment have partnered with FX Prods and Fox International Channels to co-produce hourlong period drama series Port Royal. The project, based on the original idea by Hurd, will be developed for

FX in the U.S. and Fox's international channels abroad. GK-tv and

Valhalla first unveiled Port Royal at last month's MIPTV, drawing interest from multiple suitors before teaming with FIC and FX, "a network that never shies away from provocative storytelling, which is ideally suited to the decadent and dangerous world of Port Royal," GK-tv president Craig Cegielski said. Port Royal reunites The Walking Dead executive producer

Hurd with FIC, which distributes internationally the hit AMC series. Set in the late 17th century on the island of Jamaica, Port Royal chronicles the namesake port's notorious rise as the "richest and wickedest city" in the new world, and as a self-governing safe haven for cutthroat pirates, corrupt politicians and ruthless merchants. Executive produing the project are Hurd and GK-tv's Graham King, Tim Headington and Cegielski.

Gale Anne Hurd To Develop Series Based On 'Eleventh Commandment' Book

By NELLIE ANDREEVA Monday September 19, 2011 @ 11:27am PDT

The Walking Dead executive producer Gale Anne Hurd and her Valhalla Entertainment have teamed with Canada's New Franchise Media to develop The Eleventh Commandment, a series adaptation of UK author Jeffrey Archer's 1998 novel. The action thriller centers on Connor

Fitzgerald, the CIA's most deadly assassin. Only days from his retirement from the Agency, Connor is framed by the Director of the CIA for a phony assassination on a Russian presidential candidate that could inadvertently trigger World War III. "Jeffrey Archer's storytelling is compelling, character driven and perfect for television-full of fast-paced, high-stakes danger," Hurd said of the project, which was brought to Valhalla by executive Ben Roberts.

Route One Buys Valhalla Pic 'The Nameless'

By THE DEADLINE TEAM Thursday May 3, 2012 @ 2:17pm PDT

EXCLUSIVE: Route One Films has acquired rights to The Nameless from Gale Anne Hurd's Valhalla Entertainment. The action thriller is set in a top-secret facility that houses witnesses awaiting new identities. When the area's location is compromised, a U.S. Marshal and the town's inhabitants must take a stand against assassins determined to execute the key witness in an upcoming trial. Valhalla exec Kris Henigman brought in and spearheaded development on Chris Bullett's script. At the end of last year, Route One — led by managing partners Jay Stern, Russell Levine and Chip Diggins — announced production financing from their participation in the $110 million Sovik Global Contents Fund based in South Korea. "This is exactly the kind of smart, mainstream film we want to make, and we are thrilled to be working with Gale and her team at Valhalla," the Route One principals said. Megan Hughes was instrumental in Route One's involvement in Nameless, which is being executive produced by Mike Goldberg and Josh Adler.

Valhalla, which just inked a pod deal with Universal Cable Prods, developed and produces AMC's The Walking Dead as well as projects including the upcoming FX pirate series Port Royal on the TV side. In film, its credits include Armageddon and The Incredible Hulk. It currently is working on the upcoming Halloween horror film Hellfest for CBS Films with Neil Marshall directing, as well as the Dakota Fanning-Elizabeth Olsen pic Very Good Girls.

Bullett is repped by Gersh and New Wave.

Brian De Palma has long had a thing for the notorious. mThe "Scarface" director has signed on to helm "The Boston Stranglers" for producer Gale Anne Hurd's Valhalla Motion Pictures.

The film is adapted by Alan Rosen ("Head of the Class") from Susan Kelly's nonfiction book "The Boston Stranglers: The Public Conviction of Albert DeSalvo and the True Story of Eleven Shocking Murders."

The thriller will detail the early-'60s Beantown killings and their controversial resolution.

Hurd will produce, and Kevin Kelly Brown will exec produce.

De Palma similarly plumbed real-life-derived atrocities in "Casualties of War," "Redacted" and "The Black Dahlia."

The Strangler case continues to stir debate. Many question whether Albert DeSalvo — a publicity hound who confessed to the murders and was later stabbed to death while incarcerated on unrelated charges — was the actual killer.

The murders were the basis of a 1968 movie that starred Tony Curtis as DeSalvo and Henry Fonda as the detective pursuing him. That version was based on an earlier book by Gerold Frank. Several TV and DVD movies have been derived from the events.

Valhalla and Hurd produced "The Incredible Hulk" for Marvel and Universal, which will release the film June 13.

De Palma has been the writer and/or director of "The Untouchables," "Carlito's Way" and "Dressed to Kill," but his recent films have underperformed. His last hit was "Mission: Impossible" in 1996. He is repped by ICM. (partialdiff)

Platinum Studios and Gale Anne Hurd's Valhalla Motion Pictures Married to Top Cow's "Magdalena"

Official Press Release

Beverly Hills, Calif. – (October 25, 2005) – Producers Scott Mitchell Rosenberg, chairman of Platinum Studios, an entertainment company that controls the world's largest independent library of comic book characters, and Gale Anne Hurd, founder of Valhalla Motion Pictures and producer of "The Terminator" and this year's upcoming "Aeon Flux," announced today that they are developing Top Cow's spiritually themed comic book character "Magdalena" as a feature film. Kevin Taft, who recently signed a writing deal for New Line Cinema's "Alone," has been tapped to pen the script.

"Magdalena" is about a young woman named Patience who discovers that she is part of a lineage of female warriors descended from Mary Magdalene. Patience must accept her destiny in time to save the world from a supernatural evil. The film's present-day action-adventure storyline draws on elements of biblical history, reminiscent of "The Da Vinci Code" by Dan Brown.

"'Magdalena' is exactly the kind of project we love: a strong female lead character, a story with rich mythology, and compelling characters," said Hurd. "The religious overtone adds a new dimension to the adventure story, while Kevin Taft's terrific storyline still deals with realistic, contemporary issues in an entertaining and relatable way."

"Magdalena" is the first religious-themed comic book character to be translated to film. The character has been translated into 26 languages in 55 countries and has appeared in millions of comic books worldwide.

"'Magdalena' is one of the most popular characters from the Top Cow library we have been introducing to the industry. The character, which is already available also as toys, has tremendous potential to cross over onto online, interactive games and other merchandising," said Rosenberg, adding, "Platinum Studios is very excited to be working with Gale and Valhalla on this project, because Gale has always excelled at presenting strong female characters, from 'Aeon Flux' back to 'Terminator', which was not only a seminal action movie, but also a compelling female-empowerment story," said Rosenberg, who is currently working with Hurd to produce "Atlantis Rising" as a tentpole, following up on his past success in bringing the "Men In Black" franchise to the big screen.

Co-creator and Top Cow Productions CEO, Marc Silvestri ("Witchblade," "Darkness") will also executive produce. "The need for faith in any form is what 'Magdalena' is about," said Silvestri.

"Patience's journey is, ultimately, about having faith in something -- God, a loved one, or the human condition and the need to believe in something that is greater than ourselves."

Platinum Studios signed a pact with Top Cow in 2004 to develop Top Cow's comic library for film, television, and other media. Platinum Studios and Top Cow's comic books are set up at most of the major studios, including "Cowboys and Aliens" at Sony, "Unique" at Disney, "Mal Chance" at Miramax, "The Darkness" at Dimension, "Wanted" at Universal, "Inferno" at Warner Brothers, "Rising Stars" at MGM and "Fathom" at Fox, as well as a multi-picture pact with financier Gold Circle.

The picture's development will be overseen for Rosenberg and Hurd by Valhalla's Executive Vice President Gary Ventimiglia and VP of Production and Development Steve Emery, and Platinum Studios' Director of Development Aaron Severson and Director of Production Jay Burns. Top Cow Productions' President Matt Hawkins will co-produce.

Writer Kevin Taft is repped by Brian Dreyfuss of Kohner Agency and managed by Todd Sharp of Bedlam Media.

Other credits include "The Punisher," "Aliens," "The Abyss," "The Ghost and the Darkness," and the mega-hits "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" and "Armageddon."

Platinum Studio's library contains more than 2,500 characters and a full range of genres and styles that have appeared in hundreds of millions of comics worldwide. Platinum Studios has acquired the exclusive rights to develop Top Cow's extensive library of comic book characters as well as Europe's largest creator-owned comic book syndicate, Hexagon Comics, for film and television.

Universal Cable Productions is expanding its genre portfolio, inking three new deals to bring comic properties to the small screen.

First, UCP has signed comic writer Warren Ellis, author of New York Times best-seller Gun Machine, to team with The Walking Dead executive producer Gale Anne Hurd and her studio-based Valhalla Entertainment banner to develop his first TV series. The untitled Ellis marks his first foray into television. "I've been strongly drawn to television over the last few years, and working with brilliant and determined collaborators like Gale and the UCP team, I'm delighted at the opportunity to add my voice to the new, novelistic TV form that's evolved so dramatically," Ellis said. Added Hurd: "There are very few writers who have been able to so completely influence a medium as Warren has with comic books. I am very excited to be able to collaborate in bringing his unique vision to television for the first time."

Second, UCP and IDW Entertainment have optioned horror comic Night Mary with plans to co-develop it as a live-action TV series. Based on Rick Remender and Kieron Dwyer's comic, the story follows a young woman trained to be a lucid dreamer. Her father owns a sleep disorder clinic where she enters the dreams of his patients. When a patient is revealed to be a serial killer, she is placed in jeopardy as nightmares and reality become frighteningly intertwined. John Pogue (The Quiet Ones) will write and direct the pilot. IDW's Ted Adams and David Ozer and Circle of Confusion's David Alpert (The Walking Dead) and Rick Jacobs will exec produce alongside Pogue.

Third, pulpy adventure Five Ghosts, by Frank Barbiere and Chris Mooneyham, tells the story of a 1930s-era treasure hunter possessed by five literary ghosts (Merlin, Robin Hood, Sherlock Holmes, Musashi and Dracula) whose abilities he can draw on during his adventures. Five Ghosts was funded on Kickstarter in 2012 and previewed at San Diego Comic-Con when Black Mask's Matt Pizzolo shared a table with then-unknown writer Barbiere. Image Comics picked up the title and premiered it at Emerald City Comic-Con. UCP has optioned the TV series rights from Black Mask and has signed Evan Daugherty (Snow White and the Huntsmen, Divergent) to write the pilot and exec produce. Chris Bender and Jake Weiner from Benderspink (The Hangover) will also exec produce along with Jake Wagner, who will produce, as well as Pizzolo and Brett Gurewitz, who will serve as co-EPs.

PHOTOS Broadcast TV's Returning Shows 2014-15 [8]

"We love genre at UCP and thankfully so do audiences. We've made it a priority to seek out great properties that will attract equally great creators to adapt them," said Dawn Olmstead, executive vp development at UCP. "From Warren's dynamic plots and complex characters to the dark and suspenseful world of Night Mary, and the creative mashup of five literary icons in the cult hit Five Ghosts, they are all provocative, distinctive and have the promise to be a whole lot of fun."

The three projects join a roster of other genre programming at the studio, including Battlestar Galactica and Warehouse 13. The company next has Syfy's Ascension, Dominion and 12 Monkeys, among others.

FEATURED VIDEO

Behind the Scenes: James Marsden We go behind the scenes with James Marsden, and ask him about the shoot, living in LA, and what's next.

Gale Anne Hurd earned her star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame in 2012, a year after she became a governor of AMPAS

It's a story that Hollywood hasn't tired of yet: a woman of surprising strength, inventiveness, and perseverance journeys to an exciting landscape fraught with pitfalls, defies the perilous odds against her, and emerges victorious

A sci-fi and fantasy fangirl who turned her passion for imaginative stories into a storied three-decade-plus career as a film and television producer responsible for shepherding some of the most popular genre franchises to the big screen, Gale Anne Hurd cut her teeth under the legendary Roger Corman, rose to prominence co-creating and producing the Terminator franchise and reinvigorating the Aliens films with her then-husband James Cameron, made early moves to bring Marvel Comics characters like the Hulk to the big screen, and launched TV's current horror renaissance by bringing The Walking Dead to AMC.

Now CEO of her own production company, Valhalla Entertainment, Hurd, 58, sounds off on her experience rising to the top in what was long considered a boys-only sandbox of spaceships, superheroes, zombies, and lots of sensational explosions.

You've been on guite a ride. What's the secret?

GALE ANNE HURD: Oh wow! I guess persistence. The key thing is just never giving up. Never gave up on Terminator. Ninety-nine times they said no, and the hundredth time someone said yes. The Walking Dead everyone passed on initially; all it takes is one yes.

This year marks the 30th anniversary of The Terminator. What got you and James Cameron so passionate about the project?

GH: Jim was in Italy in post-production on Piranha 2 and he called me and said he'd had a fever dream. He'd been very sick and the image that was etched in his mind was the anodized metal endoskeleton of the Terminator emerging from the flame. That's the only image he had, and from that, the movie took shape. It was a story that seemed powerful, inspired by some of the films that had recently come out that we loved—like Mad Max and Blue Thunder—but was unique unto itself. It was also something we could produce on a budget that would allow both of us to remain involved.

You've been a trailblazer as a woman with a keen affinity for genre material. Where did that connection begin for you?

GH: From the time I could first read. I would read comic books, and then I got into speculative fiction, fantasy, scifi, horror. From the time that I was 8 or 10, I read a book a day. It got to the point where I was advising the local library on what we now call YA books to add to the library's holdings.

You turned The Walking Dead, a non-superhero comic book in the zombie horror genre, into a smash hit on TV, returning for a fifth season this month.

GH: When I read it I thought, This is an ongoing series. This is the journey of the characters, both literally and figuratively, and it can't be told as a feature. In the time that it would take to film one two-hour movie, we shoot 16 episodes, so we can really tell the stories of a large ensemble cast. People keep saying, 'How can the situation be more complex and heart-wrenching than last season?' All I can say is wait until you see this season.

What does it mean to have kicked open doors onscreen and behind the scenes, both for female characters and for women who wanted to do what you do?

GH: It makes me feel very old! I feel like a pioneer—like I should have been on a wagon train. I think the important thing is to continue to remain relevant so that you can help the next generation. If you could travel Kyle Reese-like back to the past and convey any information to the you who was just starting out, what would you want to tell yourself? There's the old saying that you learn more from your failures than you do your successes, so I don't think I'd change a thing.

SyFy to Adapt 'Alien Hunter' into a Series

Tweet

By Kitin Miranda - September, 25th 2014

Recently, SyFy has moved back to its traditional kind of fare when it comes to programming — television show such as "The X-Files" which have elements of classic science fiction. The network's most recent line up and th current and upcoming television shows are a testament to this, such as "Haven," "12 Monkeys," "Childhood's E and "Killjoys." These are all reminiscent to classic SyFy fare such as "Battlestar Galactica," "Andromeda" and "Farscape." The Syfy channel has been working the original programming slate pretty well, even with some lulls here and there, as there's a lot in the pipeline being developed. A new one added to it is a thirteen episode straight to series order for Hunters, which is based on the 2013 novel by Whitley Strieber called Alien Hunter. The series is being produced by Universal Cable Productions and Valhalla Entertainment.

"We were so impressed by the pilot script from this outstanding and accomplished creative team led by Gale Anne Hurd and Natalie Chaidez," said Syfy President Dave Howe. "This fast-paced and innovative program takes viewers inside a chilling yet all-too-familiar world."

The series joins other shows on Syfy such as Helix and Dominion as well as the upcoming projects Ascension, The Expanse, 12 Monkeys, Killjoys and Childhood's End in the science fiction arena.

Flynn Carroll's lost love becomes his obsession. He begins amassing a file of similar cases nationwide. His conclusion is unavoidable: somebody is taking people and making it look like they walked out on their own. As Flynn's case files grow, his work comes to the attention of Special Agent Diana Glass, a member of the most secret police unit on the planet. This police force seeks the most brilliant and lethal criminals who have ever walked free—thieves and murderers from another world.

Without fully understanding what Glass and her team are doing, Flynn steps into a hidden world of extraordinary challenge and lethal danger. The job is the most difficult police assignment ever known to man, but the idea is the same—find the bad guys. Stop them.
